About The Collective Counsel (TCC)

The Collective Counsel (TCC) is a first-of-its-kind platform built to empower first-generation lawyers and law students. A registered Social Enterprise (MSME) backed by 500+ members and 20+ national-level initiatives, TCC delivers mentorship, skill programmes, and career navigation designed to solve India's legal access and exposure gap. Our mission: turn the legal journey into a guided, achievable, opportunity-driven experience.

About Our Founder

Adv. Yashvardhan Rane is an Advocate at the High Court of Bombay and a former UNICEF Youth Advisor with a strong background in youth-led impact and ecosystem building. He founded The Collective Counsel (TCC) with the vision of making legal knowledge accessible, structured, and student-friendly, especially for first-gen lawyers. Before TCC, he created Yuva Forum India, a youth-led organisation working across education and civic engagement. He also serves as Programme Director at the Global Centre for Law & Policy (GCLP), where he contributes to conflict resolution and policy innovation. As a founder, Yashvardhan focuses on building scalable systems, strong communities, and pathways that empower young people to navigate the legal and social impact space with clarity and confidence.

Closing Note

Great creators don't just make content but shape culture. At TCC, we're building something that goes beyond reels and posts: a platform that makes law understandable, relevant, and empowering for first-gen law students and lawyers who have no guidance. Your creativity can amplify that impact. Together, we can build a new learning ecosystem that students look up to. Let's come together to shape content that informs, empowers, and inspires everyone exploring the world of law, from students to practitioners.
